GENERAL INDEX.

VOL. II. THIRD SERIES.

Acaster's Church in danger from herself, 465; interesting character of this discussion, ib.; mode of treating the subject, 466; declension of the Church of England, ib.; the power of ordination in the Church left free and unfettered to the bishops, 468; duty of the bishops, in the examination of candidates for the ministry, 469; their deviation from the intention of the Church and the State, ib; guilt of those who undertake the ministerial office with undevout habits and temper, 471; character of the English clergy at the time of the appearance of the Wesleys and Whitfield, ib.; the question between the evangelical and orthodox parties in the Church, 472; residence of the clergy, 473, 476; reflections upon the non-residence and neglect of the clergy, 474; interpretation of the law relative to the irregularity of the clergy, ib.; services of the Church, 475; the purchase of ecclesiastical dignities, 477; the dispensing power of the archbishop of Canterbury, ib.; pluralists, 479; consequences of pluralities, 481; perversion of episcopal visitations, 482; grounds of remonstrance urged by the author, 484; object and design of this article, ib.; ultra dissenters, 485; necessity for a reform in the Church, 486; causes of the weak influence of public opinion upon the Church of England, 487; consequences of corrupt appointments in the Church, 488; consequences of the jealousies and hostilities of the members of the Church, 489; dissenters to blame for the negligence and secularity of the bishops and clergy, 492; the necessary qualifications for a bishop, 493; consequences which would result from a suppression of sectarianism, 494; duty of dissenters at the present crisis, 495.

Afghans, history of, 431; their descent from king Saul, ib.

Africa, North, the land of mystery and romance, 3; correspondence on the Ethiopian Sea, and the ancient Atlantide Island, 1; Ibn Batouta's travels in, 10.

Age, the, a poem, 161; character of the work, with extracts, 163.

Aids to development, 142; character of this work, 144.

Alfred's (king) Anglo Saxon version of Boethius de Consolatione Philosophiæ, character of, 399; his additions to the treatise, ib.

——— will, with a translation and notes, 402.

Almanac, the lady's, a tasteful annual, 557.

America, its recent discovery, 365; its reaction upon Europe, 369; its remarkable character, ib.; its population, 370; its commerce, 372; cause of republicanism, 375; necessarily pacific, 377; Sabbath in, 390; resemblance between the English and American institutions, 392; condition of women in, 395.

American Indians, their origin, 116; coincidences between their customs and those of the Jews, 119; diversities among them, 125; languages of, 126.

Americans as they are, character of this work, 389; Sabbath in America, 390.

Americans, notions of the, by a travelling bachelor, 365; religion in America, 379; character of this work, 389; condition of women in America, 395.

Amulet, the, extracts from, 450.

Andes, the, 108.

Angling, delights of, 433.

Anglo-Saxon dialects, 401.

INDEX.

Annuals, the, 486; engravings of, 550.
Annuals, the juvenile, 460.
Aristocracy of England, 374.
Avalanche, description of one, 346.

Babel, an appellation given to an extensive territory, 498.
Babylon, extent of, 496; see Mignan.
Bailey's exposition of the parables of our Lord, character of this work, 221, 227; the prodigal son, ib.; arrangement of the parables, 226; the parable of the wedding garment, 227.
Belfour's travels of Macarius, patriarch of Antioch, 419, 428; storm on the sea of Marmora, 429; image worship at Constantinople, 426.
Benefices, sometimes purchased by dissenters for the purpose of conferring them on good men, 154; a wrong system which requires or admits of such interposition, ib.; consequences of it, 156.
Berne, recent persecutions in, 299; state of religious parties there, 302.
Biography, classes of, 149, 169.
Biography, Scripture, character of, 541.
Bird's original psalmody, 302.
Blunt's lectures on the history of Jacob, character of this work, 541; character of Jacob, ib.; his vow, 544; spiritual lesson taught by Jacob's pillar, ib.
——— lectures on the history of Peter, character of the work, 542; Peter's confession of faith, 545; the temper in which the Christian should wait the coming of his Lord, 546; Peter's recovery, 548.
Boethius, the celebrated Roman, 398.
Bond's memoir of Fisk, 169; character of, 170.
Botany; see Hooker and Curtis.
Brand's journal of a voyage to Peru, 93; contrast between the ladies of Lima and those of Buenos Ayres, 106; religious worship at Buenos Ayres, ib.; religious ceremonies at Lima, 107; descent of the Cordilleras of the Andes, 110; passage of a drove of mules across the Lodera de los Vacas, 111.
Brown's biographical sketches and authentic anecdotes of dogs, character of the work, 259; tales of canine fearlessness, 260; Sir W. Scott's bull-dog terrier, 261.

Cannon of Vaud, persecutions in, 299.
Cardale's translation of king Alfred's Anglo-Saxon version of Boethius, 398; character of this work, 400; Anglo-Saxon dialects, 402.
Chaldea; see Mignan.
Christian gentleman, portraiture of a, 245.
Christianity, divine origin of; see Sheppard.
Christianity, revival of, in France, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Germany, &c., 296.
Chronological guide, a judicious work, 270.
Church, the established, benefits of, 380; security of, 388; see Acaster.
Cocoa-nut, the double, 468.
Comets, form distinct classes of bodies, more numerous and important in the economy of the system than planets, 287; their substances and composition, 288; their tails, 289; the history of opinion in connection with cometary phenomena, 290; perturbations occasioned by planetary attraction, 294; supposed consequences which would result from the near approach of a comet to the earth, 296.
Crœsus, remarks on his consulting the oracles, 85; sacrifices offered upon the occasion, ib.
Crombie's discourses on the character and offices of Christ, illustrated by a comparison with the typical characters of the Old Testament, 245; character of this work, 246, 247; tests by which the ancient types and shadows are to be tried, ib.; Joseph and Christ, 247.
Curtis's botanical magazine, 468; the double cocoa-nut, ib.

Development of the mental and moral powers, 142.
Dobson's advantages and deficiencies of the Protestant reformation, 65; the stand made at its outset, for the authority and sufficiency of the Sacred Writings, 67; the change it effected in the mode of contemplating religion, and the new light in which it placed the great subject of our acceptance with God, ib.; the eminent degree which it contributed to the subversion of the scholastic theology, 68; the deficiencies of the reformation, in the continuance of the general form and constitution of the Church, and the leading principles of ecclesiastical doctrine and polity; and in the retaining in the ritual of the Church much of the meretricious appendages of Popish superstition, ib.; character of Mr. Dobson's work, ib.; struggle of the reformers to maintain the perfection of the Scriptures, 69; doctrines of Popery at the period of the Reformation, 70; appeal to Protestant Dissenters to exemplify the spiritual nature of Christ's kingdom, 71.
Doddridge's, Dr. P., correspondence and diary, 430; Mr. Humphreys's account of the design of the publication, 411; its impropriety, 413; extracts from his early letters, 415; his character as a writer, 434.

INDEX.

Donkin's, Sir Rufane, dissertation on the Niger, 1; see Niger.

Dorn's history of the Afghans, translated from the Persian, 419.

Education, mistakes in, 142; the development of the faculties, its object, 144; duties of Christians in reference to this subject, 269.

Electric phenomena, inquiry into, 132; affinity of electric and chemical agency, 133; some modification of electricity probably at the root of many changes and effects consequent upon aërial influence, 134; spectral illusions, 140.

Ellis's Polynesian researches, character of this work, 512; analogy between the language of the aborigines of Madagascar and the Malays, and the Polynesians, 513; resemblance between the Polynesians and the American tribes, 514; South Sea Islands peopled from the East, 515; every hypothesis as to the origin of the Polynesians encumbered with difficulties, 516; alliance between some of the Polynesian traditions and the Hindoo cosmogony, 517; singular predictions preserved by the islanders, 518.

Emmanuel, an annual, its name objectionable, 554; extracts from, 555.

England, its moral and political influence, 366; its constitution, 374.

Engravings in the annuals, 550.

Ethiopian sea, the, Sir Sidney Smith's notion of its situation, 2; Isaiah's reference to it, ib.

Euphrates, the course of, at Babylon, 497.

Fayette, La, en Amérique, 388; ladies of New York, 397.

Fenelon's devout meditations, 557.

Fenelon, remarks upon some parts of his Telemachus, 89.

Fisk, Rev. Pliny, memoirs of, 169; his description of Jerusalem, 171; extract from a letter on the support of missionaries, 172; letter written a few days before his death, 173.

Flaxman's lectures on sculpture, 333; character of this work, 334, 342; sketch of Flaxman's career, ib.; criticism on Wells cathedral, 337; colouring inapplicable to statuary, 339; the effect of sculpture essentially distinct from that of painting, 341; history of Grecian art, 342.

Forget me not, the, extracts from, 439.

Forster's illustration of the atmospheric origin of epidemic disorders of health, 132; connexion of health and disease with the state of the air, 133; planetary influence upon nervous or mental malady, 134; general periodicity of nature, 136; distinction between contagious and infectious diseases, 137; influence of comets on the human body, 138; epidemics dependent on atmospherical causes, 139; spectral illusions, 140.

Friendship's offering, extracts from, 445.

Genesis, the book of, in English-Hebrew, 90.

Geographical discovery, progress of, 93.

Gesenius's Hebrew lexicon, 40; character of this work, 41, 45; advantages and disadvantages of the alphabetical arrangement, ib.; definition of the word אבר; misconceptions of Gesenius, 43.

Giorgione, a famous Venetian painter, 287.

Grenville's, lord, Oxford and Locke, 181; his view of Locke's expulsion from Oxford, 193; his eulogy on Locke, 194; his conduct towards dissenters, ib.

Grimshawe's memoir of Rev. Legh Richmond, 148; classes of biographical memoir, 149; character of this work, ib.; account of Mr. Richmond's last illness and death, 150; his nomination to the rectory of Turvey through the medium of dissenters, 153; benefices purchased by dissenters, for the purpose of conferring them upon good men, 154.

Haigh's sketches of Buenos Ayres and Chile, 93; character of, 108; snow storm on the summit of the Cumbre, 109.

Hall's, Capt. B., travels in North America, 365; benefits of the English Established Church, 380; method of preserving friendly relations between England and America, 385; discussions with the Americans, 387; character of Captain Hall's work, 388.

Hall's, Judge, letters from the West, character of the work, 391.

Hall's, Mrs. S. C., sketches of Irish character, 72; village of Bannow, ib.; effect of civilization in reuniting distinct tribes and nations, 73; specimen of Anglo-Irish, ib.; the Bannow postman, 81; character of Mrs. Hall's sketches, 83.

Harrison's tales of a physician, 72; character of this work, 84; the Jew, ib.

Head's rough notes, 93; character of them, 108; journey to the silver mines of San Pedro Nolasco, 113.

Heber, bishop, some account of his life, a catch-penny publication, 262.

Henry's letters to a friend, intended to relieve the difficulties of an anxious inquirer, under serious impressions on the subjects of conversion and salvation, 174; Dr. J. P. Smith's character of them, ib.; on the withholding of Divine grace from the inquirer, 175.

INDEX.

Herodotus; see Taylor and Larcher.

Hooker's botanical miscellany, 403; the mahogany tree, 406; anecdote of Linnæus, 407; letter by professor Schultes, 407; rice-paper, 409.

Humphreys's correspondence and diary of Dr. Doddridge; see Doddridge.

Huntingford's testimonies in proof of the separate existence of the soul in a state of self-consciousness between death and the resurrection, 273; methods of interpretation and criticism that have been resorted to, to get rid of the doctrine of the separate state of the soul, 275; plan and character of the work; 277; rough draught for an exhibition of the Church universal, on an article of faith, in such manner as may authoritatively determine controversy, 279; aversion of the Christian Churches in the present day from close study and investigation, 285.

Image worship at Constantinople, 429.

Independents, the, the principles of religious liberty not well understood by them, in the time of the Commonwealth, 199.

India; see Tod, and Modern Traveller.

Interpretation of Scripture, remarks on, 274, 277.

Iris, the, character of, 457; extract from, 458.

Irish character, sketches of; see Hall.

Israel, the ten tribes of, supposed to have peopled America, 116; see American Indians; the opinion that they never returned to their own country, unfounded, 118.

Italy; see Simond.

Jahangueir, the emperor, memoirs of, 419.

Jews, memoir of the; see Pellatt.

Job, book of, arranged and pointed after the Masoretic text, 45; variety in the arrangement of words in the authorized version, 46; parallelisms, 47.

Journal of a Naturalist, character of the work, 435; an autumnal walk, ib.

Judson, Mrs., memoirs of, 90.

Juvenile Forget Me Not, (Ackerman's) extracts from, 460.

Keepsake, the, character of, 550.

King's, lord, life of Locke, supplies an important desideratum, 181; character of the work, 182; reflections on Locke's refusal of church preferment, 187; arbitrary measures of Charles II. on religious matters, 192; see Locke.

Knight's discourses on the principal parables of our Lord, 221; character of, 228; Christ's promise to his disciples, to shew them plainly of the Father, ib.

Larcher's historical and critical remarks on the history of Herodotus, 32; character of his work, 33; correction of a mistranslation in Dalzel, 34; remarks on the story of Crœsus consulting the oracles, 35; sacrifices offered upon the occasion, ib.; description of the heathen temples—illustration of the words ἀφὸν and νάος, 37; superstitious and infamous custom established among the Babylonians, ib.; uses of the word tyrant, 38; remarks on Fenelon's placing Ajax in the Elysian fields, 39.

Latrobe's Alpenstock, or sketches of Swiss scenery and manners, character of, 343; scenery of the Niesen, ib.; description of an avalanche, 346; a landscape and cattle sketch, 347; the canton of Uri, and the Swiss peasantry, 348; pastor of an Oberland village, 352; Italian villages, 353; optical deception in Swiss views, 354; a Sunday on the continent, 355.

Linnæus, anecdote of, 407.

Literary Gazette's review of Dr. Doddridge's correspondence and diary, 410.

Literary Souvenir, extracts from, 442.

Locke, John, biography of, 181; letter to his father, 183; letter to Mr. John Strachey on the ceremony in the Catholic church in Clewes, on Christmas day, 185; refused preferment in the church, 186; his acquaintance with Lord Ashley, 188; persecution of the French Protestants, 189; on study, 190; deprivation of his studentship at Oxford, 193; his essay on the understanding, 196; his letter on toleration, 197; his treatises on government, 203; the last four years of his life, ib.

Lyte's sermon on the true nature of the Church of Rome, and the duty of the clergy towards her, 362.

Macarius, patriarch of Antioch, travels of, 428; description of Constantinople, 430.

Mahogany tree, the, account of, 405.

Mahomet, life of, published by the Society for the diffusion of Useful Knowledge, 263; a miserable performance, 264; government in Arabia at the time of Mahomet, 265; conceptions of the character of the Divinity, 266.

Matheson's advice to religious inquirers, analysis of, 175; character of this work, 176; the tendency of natural affection towards the unconverted to engender scepticism, 176.

INDEX.

Matheson's, Mrs., explanation of the principal parables of the New Testament, 221; character of, 230; parable of the wedding garment, 231.

Maw's journal of a passage from the Pacific to the Atlantic, 93; sketch of his journey, 94; character of the recent Peruvian war, 96; scenery in the Montana, ib.; the Indian tribe of Yaguas, 101; Brazilian Indians, 102; abominable system pursued towards them, ib.; cannibalism among the South American Indians, 105.

Maxwell's notion that the Zaire or Congo is the Niger, 14; Sir R. Donkin's remarks on his hypothesis, 15.

Miguan's travels in Chaldæa, &c., 496; extent of Babylon, ib.; the Birs Nemroud, 497; Babel, an appellation given to an extensive territory, 498; ruins of El Hamir, ib.; the site of old Babylon, 500; places of sepulture at Babylon, 501; analogy between these and those at Persepolis, 502.

Millennium, the. See Morison.

Milne's essay on comets, 286; a distinct class of bodies, 287.

Milton, his labours in the cause of freedom, 198.

Moase's practical suggestions and discourses, character of, 269; education of children, ib.

Modern Traveller—India, 525; character of this work, 529; difficulty of arranging the political geography of India, ib.; reflections on the ancient history and commerce of India, 530.

Morison's discourse on the Millennium, 357; prophetic number of the Apocalyptic beast, 359; the second advent of Christ not to precede the Millennium, 360.

Neologism, its source, 276.

Nicholson's operative mechanic and British mechanist, character of, 320; the Strand or Waterloo bridge, 321.

Niger, the, Sir R. Donkin's dissertation on its course and termination, 1; his fanciful notion of its course, ib.; many rivers of this name, 4; Ptolemy's description of it, 5; its source never visited, 6; Major Laing's description of its course, ib.; Mungo Park's account of it, 7; conjectures on Ptolemy's account, 8; Ibn Batouta's descriptions of it, 10; various hypotheses, 13; Sir R. Donkin's remarks on the Niger-Congo hypothesis, 14; his own hypothesis, 16; he supposes the Niger to discharge itself into the Mediterranean, ib.; remarks on this hypothesis, 18; the Niger thought to unite with the Egyptian Nile, 19.

Nile, the, of Bornou; see Niger.

Oberlin, pastor of Waldbach, in the Ban de la Roche, memoirs of, character of the work, 312; sketch of the Ban de la Roche, 313; missionary prayer meetings, 315; plan adopted by Oberlin to ascertain intimations of Divine Providence, 316; his marriage, ib.; origin and government of the thoughts, 318; 'use 'of the lot' among the Moravians, 319.

Opening of the sixth seal, a poem, extract from, 267.

Orme's history of the South Sea mission, 504; extraordinary change effected in the South Sea islands, 505; sketch of the mission, 509.

Otaheite, change effected there, and the introduction of Christianity, 504; see Ellis and Orme.

Painting, remarks on the Venetian school of, 233; few popular travellers acquainted with its principles, 234; the chemical composition of colours practically attended to by the Venetian painters, 235; oil painting introduced among them in the 15th century, 236; see Titian.

Papal apostasy, the, nature and duration of; see Vaughan.

Parables, nature and use of, 221; mistakes on their interpretation, ib.; Lord Bacon on their true nature and design, 223; the use made of them by Jesus Christ, ib.; their adaptation to the purposes of instruction, 233.

Pascal, the spirit of, 557.

Patronage, church, remarks on, 155; consequence of it, 156.

Pellatt's brief memoir of the Jews, in relation to their civil and municipal disabilities, 519; opposition made to the naturalization of the Jews, 520; condition of the Jews in the city of London, ib.; character of English Jews, ib.; persecution of the Jews in Germany, 524; their condition in France and the Netherlands, ib.; character of Mr. Pellatt's memoir, 525.

Peru, its boasted wealth an illusion, 115; see Brand and Maw.

Pestalozzi, his character, 143.

Polynesia, 513; see Ellis.

Pooley's essay on the nature and use of parables, as employed by Jesus Christ, 220; on their interpretation, 222; their adaptation to the purposes of instruction, 233.

INDEX.

Portraiture of a Christian gentleman, character of the work, 248; Sir Philip Sidney and the Earl of Sussex, 250; prayer, ib.

Price's memoirs of the emperor Jahangueir, written by himself, and translated from a Persian MS., 419; death of the emperor, 424; humane and peaceable character of his son, 426; anxieties and responsibilities of kings, 427; Bengalese Jugglers, 428.

Prophecy, lectures on, by the ministers of the congregational association, 88; the study of prophecy enforced, ib.

Pugin's Gothic ornaments, drawn on stone by J. D. Harding, character of, 270.

Reformation, advantages and deficiencies of; see Dobson.

Rice-paper, a native mineral, 409.

Richmond, Rev. Legh; see Grimshawe.

Sacrifices offered by Crœsus upon consulting the Delphian oracle, 35.

Salmonia, or Days of fly fishing, 432; written by Sir Humphrey Davy, ib.; delights of angling, 433; analysis of the work, 434.

Schultes, professor, his scientific visit to England, 407.

Sculpture; see Flaxman.

Sectarian, the, analysis of the work, 324; description of a missionary meeting, 325; character of the work, 328; Mr. Irving's character of the religious world, 330; panegyric on the Church of England, 331; true nature of schism, 332.

Sheppard's divine origin of Christianity, deduced from some of those evidences which are not founded on the authenticity of Scripture, 204; plan and character of the work, 206, 216; opposition made to Christianity, 207; its rapid and extensive progress, 208; antecedent probability that miracles were wrought to accompany the apostolic preaching, 209; proved from the statements and admissions of the opponents of Christianity, 210; reasons why the triumph of Christianity was not universal, 212; the heathen persecutions afford proof of the truth of Christianity, 214; the deep responsibility of those who admit the truth of the Christian system, 217; conjectures on the personal appearance of Jesus, 219.

Simond's tour in Italy, 48; remarks on Eustace, 49; varied impressions made on the mind by the scenes and circumstances of Italy, ib.; contrast between Eustace and Simond, 50; monument erected by the people of Milan in memory of Borromeo, 51; approach to Venice on the Lagune, 53; simple and patriarchal manners still extant in some parts of Italy, 55; description of the Val d'Arno, 57; Forsyth's description of the Campo Santa at Pisa, 58; female society at Pisa, 59; Valley of the Chiana, 60; Forsyth's delineation of St. Peter's, 61; Simond's criticism on it, 62; illumination of the interior at Easter, 64; modern Rome, 65.

Simon's hope of Israel, presumptive evidence that the aborigines of the Western Hemisphere are descended from the ten missing tribes of Israel, 116.

Social life of England and France, view of, from the restoration of Charles II. to the French Revolution, 157; exaggeration and coarse colouring in this work on the state of society at the restoration, 158; difference of national character between France and England at this period, 160.

South America, travels in, 93.

South Sea Islands; see Ellis.

Southey's All for Love, and the Pilgrim to Compostella, analysis and character of the former, 251; extracts from the latter, 256.

Spectral illusions, 140.

Spencer's, Rev. Thomas, sermons, character of, with extracts, 240.

Switzerland; see Latrobe.

Tahiti; see Ellis.

Taylor's translation of Herodotus, 23; advantages derivable from reading the ancient historians, 24; character of Herodotus, 25, 28, 32; analysis of his history, 26; coincidences between the Scripture history and the narrative of Herodotus, 27; Larcher's translation, 29; Beloe's translation, 30; comparative merits of the several translations, ib.; Mr. Taylor's translation of the story of Thermopylæ, 31.

Timbuctoo, account of, 4.

Titian, notices of his life and works, 233; his intimacy with Giorgione, 237; his picture of the San Pietro Martire, 238; peculiarities of his manner, 239; Venice, its painters, 233, 236; see Painting.

Tod's annals and antiquities of Rajast'-han, 525; character of the Rajpoots, 526; judicious conduct of Col. Tod, as agent to the Western Rajpoot states, 527; the gift of the Rakhi, 528; geography of Rajast'-han, 532; origin and derivation of the Rajpoot tribes, ib.; the state of Nieuwan, 533; storming and taking of Cheetore, singular meeting between two rival Rajpoot chiefs, 573.

Toleration, early writers on, 199; Locke's letters on, 201.

INDEX.

Translation, necessary qualities of, 45.
Typical theology, 244.
Tyrant, uses of the word, 38.

Vaughan's discourse on the nature and duration of the Papal apostasy, 357; rise of the Papal power, ib.

Walsh, Dr., his notices of the Canadian Indians, 122.
Waterloo Bridge, 321.
Wells Cathedral, Flaxman's criticism on, 337.
White's natural history of Selborne, 432.
Winter's wreath, the, extracts from, 454.
Worsley's view of the American Indians, shewing them to be the descendants of the ten tribes of Israel, 116; coincidences between the practices of the American Indians and those of the Jews, 119; unsatisfactory in proof of their Jewish origin, 123; see American Indians.
Wyss's sermon on religious parties or separations, 298.

Zaire, the, or Congo, supposed by some to be the Niger, 14; Sir R. Donkin's opinion as to its source, ib.

MUSEUM
BRITANNICUM